Prevention of Error-based Transfers

PoET (Prevention of Error Based Transfers) is an award-winning ethics quality improvement project that has successfully sustained a 68 per cent reduction in repeated end-of-life transitions of long-term care residents between care settings in the Central West Local Health Integration Network (LHIN). The project has been supported by Health Quality Ontario's IDEAS (Improving & Driving Excellence Across Sectors) Advanced Learning Program Alumni Award and also produced the Accreditation Canada Leading Practice Individualized Summary. PoET supports long-term care homes to bring habits and practices more closely in line with Ontario's Health Care Consent Act. When a home launches PoET, a PoET Spread Leader will work with staff to identify changes to test, and then support staff in making, measuring, and sustaining those changes. The goal of PoET is to ensure LTC homes understand how to provide care that the resident wants and can benefit from.
